

Daniel Kalderimis is one of New Zealand's most experienced international arbitration practitioners. Daniel leads Chapman Tripp's international law team and is the only New Zealand firm practitioner listed in the Who's Who Legal: Arbitration (which says "[t]he 'excellent' Daniel Kalderimis is a well-known name across the region and is known for his work acting for major clients in high-profile commercial disputes" and has "played an important role in New Zealand in terms of developing the sector"). Chapman Tripp is the only New Zealand firm listed in Global Arbitration Review's Top 100.

Daniel has acted in UNCITRAL, ICSID, LCIA, SCC and ICC arbitrations and has experience as an international arbitrator. He is New Zealand's representative to the ICC Commission and national correspondent to the United Nations for the two international instruments on which the country's arbitration law is based. He is a member of the SIAC Users' Council, the LCIA Asia Pacific Users' Council and the Editorial Board of the ICC Dispute Resolution Bulletin. He is also co-author of a commentary on the ICSID Convention and Arbitration Rules and a contributing author to New Zealand's foremost arbitration text, Williams & Kawharu on Arbitration.

Before returning to New Zealand, Daniel was a senior associate in the international arbitration group of Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP in London. He is a Fellow of the Arbitrators' and Mediators' Institute of New Zealand and is admitted in New Zealand, New York and England & Wales.
